CLOSING OF THE GATES

TODAY the Panam-Pacific exposition ceases to be. It is the conclusion of the most interesting and most successful of all world's fairs, with an attendance approaching the nineteen million mark, with a profit of a million and a half dollars and with the longest existence of any exposition that has ever taken place.

When it was conceived the world was at peace and there was assurance that all the nations of the world would participate. When war was declared the plans for the fair had considerably progressed, but it was suggested that there be a postponement. Those in direction, however, had the courage of their convictions and they spent the millions at their command to perfect the plans.

The result was unparalleled in history, a dream of beauty, a concrete demonstration of the arts and sciences of the world. Today the exposition closes and it is with a sigh of regret that it could not have been made a permanent institution.

GRAVE DANGER CONFRONTS

HYDROPHOBIA has hitherto been unknown in Nye county, but grave fears are expressed that when the sheep come southward, as they are beginning to do now, and are followed by the coyotes, the rabies will spread to this section. Hitherto it has largely been confined to Humboldt and Elko counties and to northern Washoe.

This is a growing menace. A year or two ago a deluded resident of southeastern Oregon is alleged to have captured a coyote and injected the germs of the disease and turned it loose, so that it could infect its fellow wolves and thus exterminate these enemies of the sheepman. But it happened that the rabies was not confined to the coyotes, for sheepdogs were bitten and cattle were also infected.

Within a year seventy people have become inoculated by dog and coyote bites, and have been given the Pasteur treatment at Reno. The cases thus far have all been north of the Humboldt river, but this region may not escape much longer. It is advised, it is imperative, that preparations must be made to combat the dread malady. Tonopah is overrun with homeless canines. A single case of infection would spread rapidly. The officers are called upon by the Bonanza to enforce the license law, which provides that all untagged dogs shall be killed. This will minimize the danger and the dogs that are owned can be kept under surveillance and protected against the rabies. The first of the year should see the dog license law enforced with all possible effort and care.

A BLUE-OR-RUIN POLICY

THE New York "World" is for Wilson and it sometimes affects to speak for Wilson. We wonder if it speaks for Wilson when it says:

"One of two things will happen in Washington at the coming session of congress. Either the administration's programme will be adopted or there will be no increase in the army and navy."

There can be only one interpretation of this language. It means that the Wilson plan of preparedness must be swallowed in its entirety by congress under the painful alternative of leaving the nation in its present wretched condition of military unreadiness.

Yet it is already known that there are not enough Democratic votes in congress to adopt the president's plan. If that plan is adopted it must be by Republican support. Does the "World" wish the country to understand that Republicans must vote for legislation in the framing of which they are to have no voice? Is the president's recent and sudden conversion to the cause of preparedness so thorough that he has already mastered all the essentials of the problem? Has he, after a few weeks, been able to formulate a plan which, running counter as it does to that of the experts in the war and navy departments, is nevertheless superior to anything that those experts would suggest? Is the president infallible?

The policy which the "World" suggests is a rule-or-ruin policy. Such a policy has too often marked this administration already—with consequent disaster to the nation's enterprise and honor. If it is now purposed to apply this policy with disaster to the nation's fate in case of war, that fact should be plainly made known. Is that what the "World" wants the country to understand?

CLIPPED AND CREDITED

The cost of making war has gone up beyond reach.—Florida Times-Union.
 Mr. Mellen says that the New Haven relied upon Roosevelt. And see where Mellen and the New Haven are now!—Boston Transcript.

Still, if La Follette was able to get half a million out of Uncle Ike Stephenson he must be smarter than most people suspected.—Philadelphia Press.

"A convert at a Michigan revival arose and said he was willing to do anything the Lord might ask, provided it was honorable." Even a convert who is full of the spirit would do well to think twice before he speaks.—Toledo Blade.

A man can walk across the United States without going through a state that has a legalized saloon and he can get riproariously drunk in every state he goes through.—Florida Times-Union.

The Sunday supplement is growing so nowadays that it causes almost as much devastation in the spruce forests as one of Henry Watterson's shorter war editorials.—Boston Transcript.

The marriage of Mrs. Dewey Murphy, of Fairplay, calls to mind the fact that a generation spans the time between today and the battle of Manila Bay.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Life is growing harder and harder for married men. Gov. Whitman, of New York, was in Sacramento and heard the baby in Albany crying. No escape.—Wichita (Kans.) Beacon.

An Idaho plumber did a job of pipe repairing while asleep. Judging by their work, some plumbers in other places have worked while under the spell of nightmare.—Terre Haute (Ind.) Star.

Gen. Huerta is reported to have bought $74,000 worth of real estate in New York City. What's a man going to do with seven square inches of New York?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Chicago man who entered the market five years ago with $35,000 has just made $500,000. If luck stays with him, he may have his original $35,000 at the end of another five years.—Indianapolis Star.

Marconi has a wireless device with which he can stop the engine of an enemy's aeroplane, it is reported. Now he might get busy on something to stop the engines on a submarine.—Terre Haute Star.

Billy Sunday is accused by his secretary of "borrowing" his sermons. Many better preachers than Billy Sunday have done this, but not many were able to man it an act of saving grace.—Rochester (N. Y.) Herald.

Twenty-eight newspapers editorialized about Magna Charta. Each cited a different paragraph as having direct bearing on the problems of the day. So the dusty old pup, doc, must have some vitality left after all.—Boston Transcript.

Impressed by the financial ability of an employee who stole $2,000 and ran it up to $6,000, a New York firm has dropped the prosecution and will retain him in its employ. He must be sorry now he didn't take $20,000 and win a partnership.—Boston Transcript.

Now and then a convict escapes from Sing Sing, but the chances are that he soon regrets his slighted opportunities.—Quincy (Ill.) Whig.
